

An Interpartition Control Facility for Processing Commands that Effectuate Direct Memory to Memory Information Transfer

Abstract of the Disclosure

A communications adapter is provided with an instruction processor which accepts 5 instructions and data for the processing of communication parameters which are used to establish direct memory to memory transfer of message packets from one node to another node without the need to produce or store the desired information within intermediate buffer storage.